Hitler Makes Address In Danzig—Hailed As Conqueror By City

DANZIG, Germany, Sept. 19.—Hailed as a conqueror by the city of Danzig, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today told Germany and the world that the war raging in Europe resulted only from the desire of western nations to oppress the Reich forever.

"Danzig, Germany for a thousand years, is now German again," the Fuehrer said, "and German it shall always remain!"

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler also told England and France in a bristling speech this afternoon that Germany will fight the war until Germany emerges victorious, assured them that Russia would not enter the conflict and disclaimed all ambitions of world conquest.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Saturday night marks the end of Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

In spite of the efforts of the government it is said that the Japanese beetle scourge is spreading over the country. These little traps which one sees occasionally, don't seem to have been very effective, and it is admitted by scientists that they don't know any method of complete extermination. Most every crop or vegetable that the farmer grows is beset by some pest. Beetles and bugs are formidable enemies because they multiply so rapidly.

Back in the days when Pa New lived in the country he was always hoping for frosts about this time of year in order that the chestnut burrs might be opened, and the hickorynuts, walnuts, butternuts and hazelnuts might be ripened. There were plenty of all kinds of nuts in those days, but the boys and girls of today don't have much fun hunting nuts. The chestnut blight has completely obliterated the chestnut tree, and walnut and butternut are scarce, also walnut and butternut. Hazelnut bushes used to be plentiful, but now it's hard to find a patch. We're glad we lived in those old days.

It was just a coincidence of course but attracted the attention of the gentlemen who takes a flier in the numbers. An Ohio car with license 541 was parked at Parking Meter 641 on Mercer street Monday afternoon.

Polish Troops Still Defending Warsaw

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Polish troops are still attempting to defend Warsaw "regardless of the fate of a million of civilian inhabitants" it was announced by the German high command at noon today.

"Polish resistance in the west of Warsaw is being rapidly crushed," the Communiqué said.

The Polish army groups encircled south of Wyszogrod, near Warsaw, and near Kutno are rapidly dissolving.

The battle of the Bzura river has ended, so far, the Germans have taken 50,000 prisoners and an inestimable amount of booty.

"We annihilated a smaller army group west of Lemberg, taking 10,000 prisoners. Lemberg (Lwow) has been requested to surrender.

Fate Of Goebbels Is Speculated On Throughout Europe

Hitler's Minister Of Propaganda And Chief Spokesman, Quite Silent

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The fate of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, for many years Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's minister of propaganda and his chief spokesman, was the subject for keen speculation in Europe today.

Travellers arriving in Amsterdam from Germany said that some people in the Reich believe that Goebbels, silent since the war began, is actually dead.

No measures have been taken by the German government, it was said, to stem the flood of rumors regarding what might have happened to him.

The German people in general, Amsterdam travelers said, are "astonished" over Goebbels' complete silence. His name has not appeared in official statements for weeks.

Goebbels was Nazi Germany's leading denouncer of Bolshevism. It was thought possible that he had been sacrificed when Hitler launched his rapprochement with Moscow that resulted in the Russo-German agreement.

He was the oldest active member of the Central Presbyterian church and had served the congregation for many years.

Britain Girds For Possible German Drive

"Lightning Stroke" In West May Be Launched By Hitler Is Belief

WILL PROTEST RUSSIA'S MOVE

Britain, However, Not Declaring War On Russia—See Nazi "Peace Move"

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Holding to one fixed policy with bulldog tenacity, in spite of such reverses as the sinking of the aircraft carrier Courageous and Russo-German collaboration in crushing Poland, Britain today girded for a possible German "lightning stroke" in the west.

First, however, it was believed that Chancellor Hitler will launch at once a two-fold offensive of threats and cajoling, in these forms: 1—Against the neutral nations, to offset the effects of the British blockade.

2—Against the British and French peoples, in the hope of forcing London and Paris to agree to peace on Nazi terms.

Peace Offensive To Fail

Hitler's "peace offensive" is bound to fail, and then, the British fear, the Netherlands and Belgium will be confronted with a threat from the German air and mechanized forces, which then will be transferred from Poland to the Rhineland.

The German general staff, in the British view, will be faced with the momentous decision of whether to strike at the low countries in an effort to turn France's Maginot line, ease pressure on the German westwall, and save the rich industrial section of the Ruhr.

The German general staff, it is believed here, is convinced that the Reich will not be able to afford a long war, and might be tempted to try a "Blitzkrieg," similar to the smash through Poland, in the west.

To Make Protest

Today it became even plainer that Britain will not fall into a German trap by declaring war on the Soviet union. British action will be confined to a strong protest over the fate of Poland, which Britain sees as the "crucifixion of small nations."

Instead, Britain intends to let Hitler do the worrying about possible Bolshevik advance into the west. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain (Continued On Page Two)

Special Session May Develop Spectacular Legislative Battle

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Hopeful that "politics will stop at the water's edge" when the special session of congress considers neutrality revision, President Roosevelt today laid plans for what nevertheless promises to be a spectacular legislative battle.

It was former Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential candidate in 1936, who suggested that politics should stop at the water's edge—although on a different occasion. The Kansas, as a delegate to the Pan-American conference in Lima last December, pledged unity in international affairs regardless of domestic political differences.

Observers, therefore, waited with interest the arrival tomorrow of Landon and his 1936 running mate, Col. Frank Knox, to sit in at a White House conference of Republican and Democratic congressional leaders that will precede by a few hours the opening of Thursday's special session of congress.

Conference Tomorrow

The president and his aides were bending every effort to persuade legislators that "partisanship and selfishness be adjourned" when the neutrality problem comes up for debate. The White House stressed the bi-partisan character of tomorrow's conference which will include half a dozen Republican leaders, including the two titular heads of the party. Word continued to come from Capitol Hill, however, that the isolationist group, headed by Senator William E. Borah (R) Idaho, was determined to fight to the last ditch (Continued On Page Two)

"Trouble" with the Ukrainian populace whom the Soviet troops, in the words of Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, had to come to protect, was admitted by the Russian officer.

This matter, he added, was being "taken care of" by the Soviet military police.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Repeated German hammer-thrusts in the Saarland sector were repulsed in official and semi-official statements today.

Each of the German assaults, none of which has assumed the character of a general offensive, was pounded back, it was stated, amid unceasing artillery fire on both sides.

Attacks Repulsed

Communiqué No. 31 announced: "There was a partial attack by the enemy during the night in the region east of the Saar River. This attack has been repulsed."

The German counter-attacks, it was believed, were directed towards the region of Permasens, at the southeastern corner of the Saarland.

Last night's assault, so far as known, was the first sizeable German stroke on the western front by night.

A previous German feint, according to unofficial accounts, occurred in the region of Saarbrücken yesterday.

Plymouth Mourns With Gov. James

Body Of James' Son Is Back Home

Funeral Ceremonies Will Take Place On Wednesday Afternoon

HUNDREDS PASS BIER DURING DAY

(International News Service) PLYMOUTH, Pa., Sept. 19.—Young Arthur H. James, Jr., namesake and only son of Pennsylvania's governor, was back home today—back in the little frame home where he was born only 20 years ago.

But it was not a rejoicing Plymouth that welcomed young Arthur this time, as it did early in January when his father became governor and made his first triumphant trip home after taking office.

This time it was a saddened, grief-stricken community that mourned the death of a young man—the death of Arthur H. James, Jr., who died in the flush of young manhood following an infection which set in after an appendectomy.

In this little mining community from which have sprung numerous state and national leaders, there was no happiness. For Arthur H. James, Jr., known to almost everyone as "brother," was and had been one of them.

Hundreds Pass Bier
Young James' body was taken home last evening from Harrisburg, where friends in private life and associates of the governor stepped mournfully past the bier. The body was taken directly to Harrisburg from Booneville, Missouri, where the youth died on Sunday.

Hundreds of townspeople and residents of nearby communities passed the bier here last night and were continuing their mournful march today. The body will be on view until tomorrow, when at 3 p. m. (EDT) the minister of the family church will conduct funeral services.

Burial will be in the cemetery at Sugar Notch, where the bodies of the youth's mother, brother, and grandmother lie.

Arthur's sister, Dorothy, the state's first lady, was bearing up well under the strain and last night won the praise of the hundreds who visited the bier for the manner in which she courageously greeted everyone.

Governor Near Collapse
The governor, however, was reported on the verge of collapse and had to be given sedatives in order that much-needed rest might be brought to him. Col. Carl Estes, Texas publisher and close friend of the governor, was also visibly distressed. Estes was in Missouri with young Arthur at the time of the operation.

Meanwhile, hundreds of messages of condolence and scores of floral pieces poured into both the executive mansion at Harrisburg and the James homestead here.

All over the capital city of Harrisburg, flags were at half staff on state buildings and will remain so until after the funeral tomorrow. The entire cabinet in addition to numerous other state officials planned to attend services in Plymouth tomorrow.

Young Arthur, the picture of health when he left Harrisburg a fortnight ago to attend Kemper Military Academy, became ill on Wednesday and was removed to the hospital. An operation followed, but severe shock and dread streptococcus infection of the throat set in and death became inevitable.

The youngster had insisted on entering a Missouri school because, as he put it, he would "be on my own, where being the governor's son wouldn't mean anything."

lain tomorrow will address the house of commons on the views of his government regarding the Russian invasion.

Britain's initial reaction was set forth in a communique by the minister of information after the cabinet took up the question. The announcement said:

"The British government considered the situation created by the attack upon Poland ordered by the Soviet government."

"This attack, made upon Britain's own ally at a moment when she was prostrate in the face of overwhelming forces brought against her by Germany, cannot in the view of his majesty's government be justified by the arguments put forward by the Soviet government."

(Moscow contended that Poland's government was non-existent, and that Russian minorities in Poland required protection.)

"The full implication of these events is not yet apparent, but his majesty's government takes the opportunity of stating that nothing that has occurred can make any difference in the determination of his majesty's government, to fulfill our obligations to Poland, and to prosecute the war with all energy until our object is achieved."

That object, it has been stated frequently, is the extinction of Hitlerism.

against the infantry and mechanized equipment of the Germans, and kept the enemy from even approaching closely to the French advance posts.

French Guns Superior
The French 75 mm. gun, vastly improved over its famous predecessor of World war days, was described as proving vastly superior to the new German small calibre artillery, in both distance and accuracy.

Positions on the whole have not been greatly changed in the last day or two, the French concentrating on intensive artillery preparation for further anticipated pincer movements to crush out German advance positions before the German lines.

Communiqué No. 30 last evening said: "Artillery was active on various points on the front, particularly in the region south of Saarbrücken."

"An enemy submarine was attacked successfully by our naval forces."

While the "big rush" was delayed on the German westwall, France continued to consolidate her internal position, and diplomatic activity pointed to anxiety over the future of Rumania and other Balkan states.

Solidarity of the country was shown when the general federation of labor formally severed all connections with the communist party—a move made by popular demand led by Ex-Premier Leon Blum, the socialist party leader.

against repeal of the existing arms embargo. Administration strategy was being mapped accordingly.

Tomorrow's conference in the White House oval room may find President Roosevelt baring to Lane, Knox and the congressional leaders the state department's most confidential information on the probable future trend of events in war-torn Europe.

Similar Conference Held
Mr. Roosevelt conducted a similar conference last session when he called in the full membership of the senate foreign relations committee and tentatively pleaded for repeal of the neutrality act by accurately forecasting the European war which broke out this month. It was at this conference that Senator Borah had private information from abroad, superior to that obtained by American diplomats and military attaches, which convinced him there would be no war this year.

Borah will not be at tomorrow's meeting. One White House aide suggested rather sardonically that the veteran Idaho senator "already had attended his neutrality conference."

It was believed, however, that those in attendance will hear from the president and secretary of state Hull some rather startling disclosures concerning the international situation—particularly with reference to the Soviet Russia and Japan as they may affect American economy.

Mr. Roosevelt, meanwhile, was working out a rough draft of the message he probably will deliver in person to the special session on Thursday. If he delivers it personally, the president will gain the benefit of a nationwide broadcast of his argument for repeal of the neutrality act and a return to the time-honored principles of international law in guiding the nation's conduct as a neutral.

Borah, opposing repeal of the embargo on shipment of U. S. markets to the Nazis as well as European democracies. This, the Idahoan said, may change the president's plans since he wants to aid the democracies.

Miss Carolyn E. Crawford.

Miss Carolyn E. Crawford, member of one of New Castle's pioneer families, died at the age of 91 in her home at 120 North Jefferson street Monday evening at 10:45 o'clock.

Death came quietly as a small group of relatives—including the only surviving member of her immediate family, Joseph E. Crawford, a brother—asssembled at her bedside last night. While she had been under the care of a nurse for more than two years, Miss Crawford was not confined to bed until about two weeks ago.

Miss Crawford was the daughter of James A. and Elizabeth A. Crawford of one of a family of ten children. She was born in the site of the present Hoyt building on the public square.

Miss Crawford started school in the old Scotland school, which stood long ago on the road toward the Harbor. Later she enrolled in Webster's seminary at North Sewickley and then finished her schooling at the old Pittsburgh Female seminary, in Pittsburgh.

In recent years Miss Crawford's health had been exceptionally good, considering her advanced years.

Active in clubwork years ago, she maintained up to her death her interest in the New Castle Motor club and the New Castle Motor club. She continued her memberships in them up to the very last.

She maintained a deep interest for years in the affairs of the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Crawford is survived by the brother Joseph E. lately of Berea, O., and now of Phoenix, Ariz. He has been here with his wife throughout the summer. The brother and three nieces, Mrs. Edna User, Mrs. Sam H. McGoun, and Miss May Hoyt, all of this city, and Frank Hoyt were at the bedside when death came last night. Two sisters and six brothers preceded her in death.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home at 120 North Jefferson street Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock with Dr. J. J. McElvaine of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Burial will be in the private Crawford cemetery, situated on a knoll above Atlantic avenue and overlooking the Shenango river.

CHAS. M. SCHWAB TAKEN BY DEATH

America's first billion dollar corporation, United States Steel, had been confined to bed since his arrival from Europe last August 31 when he was brought ashore on a stretcher. He was stricken with a severe heart attack in London.

Schwab had been in failing health for the past several years but had always remained vigorous despite his age and his duties as chairman of the board of Bethlehem Steel Corporation until the death of his wife, last January. Schwab had married her, then Miss Emma Erania Dinkey, the daughter of a steel mill chemist, at the age of 21 when his rising career made the union possible. She had been his constant companion throughout life and when she died he sadly closed his $2,000,000 mansion on Riverside Drive and set out to "start life anew."

His health soon began to fail rapidly.

50 Years In Industry
Schwab's career of 50 years in the steel industry, a career that embodied the typical American success story of poverty to riches, was marked from beginning to end by everlasting optimism. Throughout the economic disturbances of the latter years, Schwab continually preached the doctrine of optimism.

Temporary funeral arrangements made last night called for burial after a requiem high mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral Thursday morning at 10 a. m., but it was announced this was subject to change.

At Schwab's bedside when he died were his sister, Mrs. David Barry, of Loretto, Pa., and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Schwab. Another sister, Sister Cecilia, a Carmelite nun, also survives.

Schwab's death at a time when war again engulfed Europe recalled his services to the allies in the World War. During the first two years of the war he supplied England with $150,000,000 worth of armaments despite criticism from the then Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan, who regarded the contracts as a violation of American neutrality. It was later revealed that the German government had instructed its agents to pay Schwab any sum without limit, reputed by legend to have been as high as $100,000,000, if he would cease supplying the allies.

When the United States entered the World War, the vast plants of Bethlehem Steel were rushed to capacity and more supplying the nation with ships and munitions. And when Schwab in 1918 was drafted by President Wilson to head the emergency fleet corporation as a director, he had to leave his home in Bethlehem, Pa., to go to Washington.

"I am a sentimental man in business and everything else," Schwab said on his 70th birthday. "No business will be happy and successful unless it has sentiment in it," he added.

Until the last, Schwab carried on his duties as chairman of Bethlehem Steel's board. "I'll never retire," he had declared on his 70th birthday and when minority stockholders in 1937 sought to remove him on a charge that he had "outlived his usefulness" he was re-elected by an overwhelming vote of confidence.

"Bethlehem Steel is my monument," Schwab had often said. "I hope it will stand as something worthy to be connected with."

She had a nasty little temper that was notorious in the neighborhood. But, contrary to everyone's opinion, it didn't come from being "spoiled." ### The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

FINDING SOME SOURCE OF NERVE HABITS

A father of six sons writes:
"Dear Dr. Myers: My wife and I have read your column for several years and have profited greatly by its pertinent advice. We notice that you often mention having written a reply to a letter you had received from parents, and I thought I also might ask a question you might be able to answer.
"We have a nine year old son who appears to be in normal mental and physical health. He is in proper grade at school and doing work above average. He plays well with other children and seems to be above average in most of the good personality traits.

"He has, however, for the past five years acquired a variety of annoying habit that appears to us to be the result of some nervous disorder. However, we cannot discover what the cause of the nervousness might be. For example, for a period of time he had the habit of curling his hair with his finger, and did it at the table, in school, at play and when he fell asleep at night.

"Suddenly he deserted this habit and commenced to roll the balls of his eyes in circles, and did it constantly. After a few months this habit disappeared and he commenced grinding his teeth. After a few months it was a habit of stretching his neck muscles and twisting his head, much as a person whose collar was too tight. Following this habit was one of wincing an arm as though his underclothing was itching. Now it is the habit of shuffling with one foot.

"We have wondered if you could diagnose the difficulty, or if you have had experience with such habits in other children. We would appreciate any assistance that you could give us.

I replied that he had given a "nice clinical picture of what may be called 'tics' or habit spasms. However, it is not common for the habit spasm to shift so quickly to a new form as in this boy's case. But this rapid shift indicates a continuous background of an unstable nervous condition.

Take Him To Specialist
"If I were you," I wrote him, "I should take the boy to a nerve specialist. Meanwhile, you could do no harm. I think, if you were to work on yourself, the family and the boy's whole environment with a view to rendering him more serene. Have his eyes tested and induce him to be less interested in excelling at school. Cut down his movies to very, very few or none and either get rid of your radio or keep it silent except for quiet music.

"Encourage the lad to play out-of-doors, but not for too long stretches at a time. See that he avoids excessive fatigue and excitement.

"Ask yourself if he feels wholly worthy and secure emotionally in the family group; if he feels he is loved as much as the rest of the family.

"Anything you can do to help make this boy more poised, relaxed and serene should help him escape these outward expressions of inward instability."

THEY ALL DO IT

The great men and women are human after all. They have the same human frailties possessed by the rest of us.

Whether it is true or not, it is said when Viscount Swinton was Minister for Air in the British Cabinet he took the controls of a new seaplane. He was accompanied by a young pilot of the Royal Air Force.

Having taken off from Southampton they flew over most of southern England. At Reading airport Lord Swinton circled lower and lower, just as if he intended to land. The young pilot got so nervous he finally reminded his Lordship that any attempt to land a seaplane on land would result in disaster.

The big man said nothing but sent his plane higher and finally returned to Southampton. There, he landed on the water and, in a kindly, amused, party condescending manner gave his young companion a lecture on keeping his poise. He tried to convey the idea that the Commander-in-Chief of Aircraft for Great Britain really knew the difference between a seaplane and a land plane.

"No harm done, old chap," he said, "but don't lose your head so easily the next time, what?"

Whereupon Lord Swinton removed his helmet and stepped out grandly into fifty feet of water.

God built a continent of glory and filled it with treasures untold. He studied it with sweet, flowing fountains and traced it with long, winding streams. He carpeted it with soft rolling plains and columned it with thundering mountains. He planted it with deep shadowed forests and filled them with song.

What's What At A Glance

Capital Has Office Shortage
Federal Expansion Crowds City
Hotels Also Reported Crowded

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON is the worst overcrowded city in this country. If we get into the war business it will have to be transacted in tents. Government bureaus will have to be housed in "em, too. Not only are rental charges simply terrible; office room is scarcely to be had at any price. A chap I know recently came to the capital from out of town intending to establish public headquarters for a big industry, and darned if he can find desk room anywhere. He has to operate from his bedchamber in a local hotel. And hotels are crowded, for that matter.

Governmental expansion is responsible for this condition.

It began with Uncle Sam's entrance into the last war—the one before this one. So many new federal agencies were created at that time that Uncle Sam's personnel literally overflowed into the streets.

A score or so of temporary shacks were hustled up to accommodate surplus officialdom. These "tempes," as they were called, consisted of practically nothing but lath and plaster. They averaged three or four stories high, moreover. "No smoking" signs papered their walls. Such warnings weren't necessary. Only a lunatic would have scratched a match in one of them. They'd have burst into flames at an angry look. An occupant of one of their upper offices, awake and alert when an alarm was sounded, would have had to jump out of the window to escape; stairways would have been too slow for him.

The supposition was that, with the war's end, our U. S. Setups would shrink numerically and that these dumps would be torn down for kindlingwood.

No such shrinkage followed. The "tempes" continued for a decade. Hoover Construction Period
Then ensued the period of President Hoover's reconstruction of governmental Washington. It cost a lot more than the price of the Louisiana Purchase and the Alaska Purchase combined, but it wiped out the "tempes"—except two or three, which had burned down meanwhile.

However, the government hadn't the "tempes" alone to worry about. A couple of its departments—justice and commerce—occupied privately owned buildings, which it was renting at fancy figures. It looked like good business for Uncle Samuel to put them under his own roofs, rent free and tax free—for Uncle Sam doesn't pay taxes to Washington, much to Washington's dissatisfaction.

Well, the U. S. went ahead and did all this. But it didn't vacate any of its rented buildings. Officialdom wanted more accommodations faster than it could vacate any of its rented quarters. It's as much of a tenant as ever. And more so—its offices have expanded out of Washington as far as Baltimore.

War, State and Navy
Let me illustrate.
There's an historic edifice on Pennsylvania avenue, once known as the War, State and Navy building. Originally it housed those three departments.

The navy department was "canned" out of it during the last world war. It got a new Navy building. The war department, however, hung onto a few offices until lately. Now it also has been cast into outer darkness—in the Munitions building.

What once was the War, State and Navy building now is the State Department building exclusively.

Bulge, Bulge, Bulge
In short, the government began to bulge with the beginning of the 1914 war. It bulged further when the U. S. went into it. It was expected to shrink later. It didn't. It bulged further with the Hoover depression. It bulged still more with the New Deal. Now it's bulging with neutrality.

If we get into THIS war? Oh, mercy!

And an extra session of Congress!

What'll happen to this town's rentals will be aplenty.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

My friend Bert Crockett, who made the old Waldorf-Astoria news and is doing the same for the Hotel Biltmore tells me that his business provides a sharp reminder that, between wars, the melting pot has been really melting. When the first World War started, hotels, night clubs and restaurants were in serious trouble because their cuisine and service was manned by foreigners who were suddenly jerked back home to man a gun instead of a tray or a soup ladle. Many of these returned to take their old places as chefs and head waiters and the first thing they did when they hit these shores was to put in a bid for American citizenship.

Their sons are coming along, picking up their father's trade. To them the World War was far away and long ago and this one is just something else again. They keep their mind on their work. And there is to be taken into account the immigration quota law, passed in July 1929. It admits only 153,900 aliens annually, as contrasted to the hundreds which used to swarm through Ellis Island every year. This restriction spreads the newcomers pretty thin and they are rapidly absorbed into not merely legal but actual and participating American citizenship that they used to be.

Which seems all to the good, considering the disorders that may arise in the body politic from undigested citizenship, in such times as these.

"There are many employees of French and Italian nativity among our chefs and waiters," said Mr. Crockett. "They are naturally keenly interested in the European war, but I have been impressed with the fact that they are taking it with the detachment of old-line Americans. I haven't learned of a single hot argument and nobody is tearing off to the war."

"It was different in 1914. All the big hotels were embarrassed with rows and contention. One could go ever farther back to get the contrast between the old days and today. In 1903, with the visit of Prince Henry, there was a thundering big row at the Waldorf Hotel where the Prince stayed, growing out of the indiscreet remarks of some unreconstructed German employees. So far as I can see all goes calmly now. Our management has not found it necessary to issue orders against discussing the war, merely counselling discretion and reasonable restraint. That seems to be true pretty much all over town."

One wishes to make no unfeeling reference to the distress of Europe. But I think there is reasonable and not unkind satisfaction in the fact that it is no longer the flow of American immigrant dollars which is helping finance this new war. For many decades, with the bars down to immigrants, a golden tide flowed to Europe, with money sent home from other shores. It was partly the representation and partly the restriction of immigration which lessened this outflow.

But there is another, perhaps more legitimate, reason for satisfaction in this ebb tide. It has become difficult for a foreign born American worker to get money to his relatives in Europe. In the treat-em-countries, the gift for the folks back home is snaggled out of the envelope by an ever-watchful government to help buy shooting irons. In Germany they have had a system by which gifts of money could be sent in the Christmas season and a certain part of it would reach the person to whom it was addressed. But that probably will be out now. Death never takes a very long holiday over there, and such sentimentalism never will be tolerated in wartime.

The immigrant worker has something else to ponder. Not only does the mother country snatch the gift from the immigrant's mother, out it just can't seem to stop provoking somebody else to drop a bomb on her. One can begin to understand the calmness of naturalized Americans in the face of what is happening; the temperate tone of the foreign-language press in America; the coolness and self-restraint of the foreign-born. More of them are old settlers now and they seem to think they are doing all right.

I do not believe there is here any selfish complacency in the face of this new horror. In Sophocles' line we know as well as any other. But we do not believe that it will be assuaged by anything less than our greatest possible contribution—the safety and salvation of our America.

Present American Navy Result Of Victory In Battle Of Lake Erie 126 Years Ago

U. S. S. Pennsylvania—cost approximately $11,000,000.

U. S. S. Niagara—cost less than $10,000

The Battle of Lake Erie

By Central Press
ERIE, Pa., Sept. 19.—The policy of a strong navy to insure inviolability of America's neutrality in wars between foreign countries dates from Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry's victory in the battle of Lake Erie during the war of 1812. Thus the rest of the nation may well have joined the city of Erie, where Perry's ships, the Lawrence and Niagara, were built and launched in March, 1813, in celebrating the 126th anniversary of this famous naval combat.

Although George Washington told the federal congress in 1796: "It is our experience that the most sincere neutrality is not sufficient guard against the depredations of nations at war. To secure respect to a neutral flag requires a naval force organized and ready to protect it from insult and aggression." The American navy was allowed to disintegrate until in 1812 it consisted of but 20 ships, poorly armed. The decision to fight Great Britain came after repeated violations of America's neutrality.

Turning point of the war came in the battle of Put-in-Bay (or Lake Erie) which took place on September 10, 1813. Dashing 28-year-old Commodore Perry defeated the British fleet by daringly quitting his battered flagship Lawrence and advancing to victory in the Niagara.

After the engagement he wrote to his superior, Commodore Isaac Chauncey, that now famous phrase: "We have met the enemy and they are ours. Two ships, two brigs, one schooner, one sloop. Yours with respect and esteem, O. H. Perry."

When Warships Were Cheap
Contrasting the huge sums spent to build America's present day battleships, the story of the cost of materials and labor in the construction of Perry's two fighting brigs, the Lawrence and the Niagara vividly illustrates the considerable growth and development of America's naval arm since that day.

An insight into cost of labor in that early period in America's development is revealed in the article which says: "Steel was hauled from Meadville, Pa., and axes were made at the shipyard. Holmes Reed received $5.50 for setting a steam kettle and $5 for building a forge for John McDonald, the blacksmith. "Coal was hauled from the pits, location uncertain, at 6 1/2 cents a bushel. Wages ranged from $2.50 a day for the master ship builder and $2 for blacksmith down to the $1.25 for sawyers and 62 1/2 cents for axemen a day.

Hauling, with horses or oxen, were paid for at $4 a day. Board for the men was $2.25 per week. William Black gave his receipt for $64.00 for working in the blacksmith shop 68 days and boarding himself.

Navies, Then And Now
Comparing the statistics on Commodore Perry's Lawrence and Niagara to present day battleships we find that the combined cost of the two brigs in 1813 was approximately $19,500, or less than $10,000 each. A modern American battleship will cost between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 to build.

The size of the Lawrence and the Niagara is listed at 490 tons each. Perry's entire fleet of three brigs, five schooners and one sloop with 54 guns was estimated at 1,671 tons. A modern battleship will average 3,600 tons.

Admiral E. W. Eberle, United States navy, writes in the National Geographic that the war of 1812 has been called our second war of Independence and this time it was chiefly to establish the principle of the Freedom of the seas and the inviolable rights of neutrals.

With Perry's success in the battle of Lake Erie came the establishment of the principle of a strong American navy which today stands as a defense against the threat of any warring country to violate American neutrality.

Note Purported From Lost Flier Found In Sweden

Note In Bottle Supposedly From Missing Backman, Hope For Actual Identification

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—A note purportedly written by Charles Backman, 34-year old Swedish born Chicagoan who disappeared last May while flying from Newfoundland to Sweden, has been washed ashore on the Swedish coast, it was revealed today.

Backman's brothers Gust and Andrew, said they had been informed the note contained in a bottle said: "Crashed in mid-ocean. Can't last more than three days—Charles Backman."

The brothers, with whom Charles had been associated in a painting business, said that several months ago they had been sent another message, found in a bottle washed ashore near Hyannis, Mass. This message was indistinct, but the words, "Wind, storm, motor trouble" and "down" were legible. A handwriting expert reported the writing resembled Backman's.

If, when received, the note found in Sweden turns out to have been written by Backman, the brothers said it will place the seal of certainty on the fate they are now convinced befell their brother.

Plan To Repair
Disposal Plant

Worw To Be Commenced As Soon As Wall Project Is Completed On City
Property

According to Glenn Throop, city engineer, some additional work at the city disposal plant, just outside the Seventh Ward, is planned. This work is scheduled to get under way when the present wall project is completed at the plant.

According to Throop, broken sections of the drying beds will be rebuilt and weak parts replaced. At the present time the beds are of concrete, but the sections that need replacement will consist of a small hewn stone curb.

Engineer Throop stated that the work will be done by the WPA, and the materials as usual on these projects will be furnished by the city. It is expected that the wall project that has been working for almost a year will be completed soon.

Predicts French
Will Crack Line

World War Hero Predicts Victory For French On Western Front

MERRIAM, Kan., Sept. 19.—John Lewis Barkley, Missouri's famous World War hero, and cited by Maj. Gen. G. Harbord as the "outstanding hero of the World War" was firm in his belief today that "French mobile guns will be able to reduce the famous German Siegfried line to a mass of wreckage."

Now living on his dairy farm near Merriam, Barkley said: "I believe that once the Allies believe they are in a position for a great assault they will be able to destroy the Siegfried line in a short time. Furthermore, when the line is broken it will mean the breaking of the fighting spirit of the German people."

"They have been told so repeatedly by Hitler and his military aides that the line is impregnable that when it is broken civilian morale will also break down. And it was that same breaking down of civilian morale that caused the collapse of Germany in the last war."

Favors U. S. Neutrality

The veteran soldier said he favored United States neutrality as long as Germany respected American lives and American shipping.

"If they don't, well, that's a different story," he said.

Barkley gained fame when he captured a German tank single handed and then with the tank as his fortification and a single machine gun stopped a counterattack of the enemy.

New Headlight
System For Autos

Better And Safer Driving Is Predicted Through Discovery

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—A new headlight system utilizing "sealed unit" will be installed as standard equipment on the 1940 models of all principal motor makers.

"Hailed by the industry as 'potentially ranking with four-wheel brakes and safety glass as a significant contribution to motoring safety,' the new lighting units combine the reflector light source and lens in one tightly sealed unit."

Through better distribution of light on the road plus prolonged lamp efficiency, automotive engineers declare the new unit will contribute so materially to the ease of driving at night that an increasing use of highways at night will follow.

The sealed unit was developed by three years of cooperative research by representatives of all major automobile manufacturers.

Expected of the new unit are:
1—Greater reflector efficiency—due to elimination of dust and other foreign matter from the lighting unit.
2—Reduced servicing of headlamps, because the focus of the new unit is permanently set.
3—Decreased glare.

The new headlight has two beams, a "narrow" beam for city driving and a more powerful "country-beam."

All headlamp manufacturers will produce the new unit on a master pattern, thus simplifying replacement.

Hitler Makes Visit

Makes Triumphant Entry Into

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

DANZIG, Sept. 15.—Within earshot of German guns still pounding at a band of Poles holding out on the Hel Peninsula, Chancellor Hitler came to the Danzig area today to deliver a speech to the Reich.

The Fuehrer will make his first important public utterance since he started his troops rolling into Poland over two weeks ago from the ancient Artushof, the merchant center of Danzig, at 5 p. m. (12 noon EDT).

(Speculation immediately arose as to whether Hitler—as has been predicted abroad—might take the opportunity to hold out a peace offer now that Germany and Russia, virtually have completed the conquest of Poland.)

Only 300 persons will be allowed inside the building, but the entire populace of Danzig will flock into the streets to hear the speech over loud speakers.

Danzig, welcoming Hitler for the first time since he accepted the former "free city" as a part of the Reich, was a riot of flags and color. The Chancellor will make a triumphant entry from the neighboring seaside resort of Zoppot at 4:15 p. m.

Leaving the front lines of central Poland, Hitler arrived at Zoppot last night and stayed at the grand hotel.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

DOCTORS CANNOT TAKE CHANCES IN CASES OF HEAD INJURY

As we saw yesterday, a fracture of the skull is often very difficult to diagnose unless there is an X-ray handy for the doctor in attendance. So, except in the most severe cases, the doctor won't be able to make an immediate diagnosis.

He will, of course, have the child put to bed immediately and he will ask you to watch him with the utmost care. He will ask that temperature, pulse and respirations be measured every hour, at least. The reason for this precaution is that if there is a fracture present which has caused a hemorrhage into the brain, there will be changes in these three things as the pressure on the brain becomes more severe.

For instance, the respirations may go down and become less frequent. Or they may change in character and present a peculiar rhythm in which there will be a series of very small gasps, which gradually become larger until the child is taking great gasping respirations. These gradually become smaller again and may be followed by a pause in which no respirations seem to occur for a period of a few seconds. The pulse will gradually rise if there is increasing pressure in the skull. These measurements must be made with great care because upon the early discovery of these changes going on within the brain depend the child's life.

Even though there is nothing to suggest a serious fracture of the skull, not many doctors will take a chance in the case of head injury. I know that I have always insisted that the patient remain in bed for a few days, and wherever possible I have had X-ray plates made of the skull before the child was allowed up again.

Fortunately, a great many children with fractures of the skull do pretty well. But there are some complications which, if they occur, complicate recovery and make the results of the injury more serious.

If a blood vessel has been ruptured and blood is pouring into the brain, then an operation should be performed. The greater the bleeding, the greater the need for the operation. Of course such an operation is a serious thing, as is any interference with the complex and delicate brain. However, if parents are told that it is necessary, then they must make up their minds that the life of the child probably depends upon it; the longer they delay, the more chance there is of the fracture proving fatal.

Sometimes in a serious injury the fracture in the skull communicates with the outside. That is, the blow which did the damage has laid the brain right open and then there is grave danger of a meningitis or some other infection of the brain.

When the break occurs into the nose and throat, there is also great danger of infection because there is so much bacteria present in these places. When it happens, the child must be kept in bed, quiet, until the bone has completely healed.

In the case of a fracture, it is very important that the doctor's instructions be followed with great care. So when he orders the patient kept in bed, you know he is only doing what is best for the child.

Erect Monument To Ohio Cattle Man

Felix Renick Hailed As Founder
Of Better Cattle
In State

(International News Service)
CHILLICOTHE, O., Sept. 19.—A monument to Felix Renick and his associates for importing the first good beef cattle into Ohio from England over a hundred years ago has been completed just south of Chillicothe on route 23.

In 1835 Renick and his associates, discouraged by their results in breeding beef cattle with their poor stock, resolved to import into the Scioto valley the finest cattle in the world. Renick was chosen for the mission.

Traveling about England in search of cattle that would thrive under Ohio conditions, Renick finally decided on the shorthorn breeds of the Tessa valley. He purchased the cattle, shipped them to Baltimore, and then drove them overland to Chillicothe.

The herd of 43 thoroughbreds sold for $34,540, an average of $803. It was the first public auction of shorthorns in America.

The sale dispersed the cattle so well over Ohio and neighboring states that the shorthorn became the first popular purebred beef stock in America. Today, the shorthorn is the leading breed in Ohio and is rivalled over the nation only by the Hereford.

Warsaw Holds Out With Unbelievable Tenacity Paris Hears

Fear Rumania Will Be Invaded

Claims Of Germans And Poles Conflict Over Condition In Poland

POLISH GOVERNMENT LOCATION MYSTERY

(International News Service)
PARIS, Sept. 19.—Warsaw held out with unbelievable tenacity against a terrific new German onslaught today, according to word received in Paris, as fears mounted in Rumania and Hungary of a German or Russian coup de force.

Units of the southern Soviet army have reached the Sub-Carpathian frontier, causing the governments of Budapest and Bucharest to take extraordinary precautions.

Staunch Resistance

The Poles holding out in Warsaw put up staunch resistance to the new German attack, fragmentary reports declared. The Germans announced that their battle for possession of the Przemyśl fortress in southeastern Poland had ended in victory, with 50,000 Polish prisoners taken.

Collapse of the Polish lines under the joint Russo-German invasion was reported. Polish circles, however, insisted that heavy fighting was still in progress, at Lublin, Lwow and Kutno. In contradiction to German claims, they insisted that these three cities as well as Warsaw were still in Polish hands.

Exact whereabouts of the Polish government headed by President Ignace Moscicki were not known. The government, however, was expected to establish itself in France at an early date.

Foreign Under-Secretary Auguste Champetier De Ribes conferred today with the Polish ambassador while Robert Coulondre, chief de cabinet to Premier Daladier, saw the Turkish and Belgian envoys.

EDUCATOR CITES CHANGE IN SCHOOL TEACHING METHOD

(International News Service)
FRANKLIN, Ind., Sept. 19.—A whipping every six minutes once was administered to children in public schools, but now flogging is passe, Dr. Albert Mock, professor of education at Butler university in Indianapolis, said at the Johnson county teachers institute.

"In New England's early days" Dr. Mock declared "educators made a serious educational approach based on the idea that the child is naturally mean."

Not until the turn of the century did educators realize children are not "naturally bad" and it was then progressive education gained a foothold," he said.

Scientists Find Ancient Cave In Desert Mountain

Mysteries Of California's First Residents May Be Revealed Soon

(International News Service)
SAN DIEGO, Sept. 19.—Mysteries of the time and the habits of Southern California's first residents may be revealed in an ancient cave found by scientists at San Diego Museum of Archaeology, Balboa park, in an unnamed range of desert mountains.

Malcolm J. Rogers, chief curator of the museum and leader of the party which found the cave, a wind-hewn cleft in a mountain spur, told of the find and its possibilities.

"Because of unique circumstances," the curator said, "this find promises to solve many confusing problems of the succession of peoples and their respective antiquities and of some of their tools and customs."

Before the cave, the museum party found a large slab of rock littered with ancient petroglyphs so old and faint now that they can be clearly discerned or photographed only when the slanting rays of the rising sun strike them at just the proper angle to bring out their shadows. Because of the inscriptions the scientists named the cave, "Petroglyph cave."

The ancient home of the Indians is about 100 feet wide, 10 to 12 feet deep and five feet high and situated about 50 feet up the mountain spur and partially buried by landslides. Its exact location is being kept secret by the museum.

Will Ask Larger Fund To Boost S. American Trade

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, revealed today that the next congress convening in January would be asked to give the Export-Import Bank $100,000,000 more to bring the total funds of the bank up to $200,000,000.

He said that some of the money was being used to help U. S. trade with Latin-American countries. He recalled that Chile had been given a loan of about $5,000,000 to buy products in this country.

At the same time he revealed that a loan to Panama to help build a road was being considered. Congress appropriated $1,500,000 for the road last spring and Panama needed help to carry out its part of the road building program.

Jones declared the Export-Import Bank had enough funds to take care of the "most urgent" cases until congress convenes in its regular session in January.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Countless children carry their own lunch to school.

What to put in Jennie's little blue lunch box?

This is a problem for many mothers.

Foods that are merely filling are not always best.

Milk, eggs, butter, fruits and vegetables are good foods.

Peanut butter and jelly sandwiches help to balance rations.

Cheese sandwiches and butter supply needed calcium and vitamin A.

A tomato, orange or other fruit is important.

The lunch box should be attractively packed.

Clean tissue or oiled paper keeps food neat and fresh.

The school child needs a proper, not a bulky, lunch.

Balance, quality and attractiveness are essential.

Witness Stand And Makes
Denial Of Charges

The case of Jimmie Daniele and Sam Kosky, charged with robbery of the A. and P. store on East Washington street, which was taken up for trial before Judge W. Walter Abraham, in county court Monday, went to the jury shortly before noon today.

Among the witnesses examined on the side of the commonwealth were Chief of Police Ralph A. Criswell, George Price, Mrs. George Price, Eleanor McKibben, Joseph Proctor, Ray Showalter, Joseph R. Leonard, Robert Thompson, Fred Finello, Alton Michael and Eleanor Palus.

Daniele, one of the defendants, went on the stand and denied his participation in the robbery. Kosky did not go on the stand.

Two girls from Pittsburgh testified that Daniele and Kosky had been with them at a picture show, the night before the robbery. This was to refute a statement that the two men had been in the A. and P. store on the evening before the robbery.

Remove Three Passengers From Italian Liner Rex

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Italian liner Rex sailed from New York 25 minutes late today as the result of cable orders from Genoa to remove three German passengers—one a baroness—from the boat.

The orders apparently were generally directed against carrying any passengers traveling on German, Czech or Slovakian passports.

Baroness Ruth Oppenheim, wife of a German banker, was waving farewell to her husband from a deck aboard the Rex when a steward brought her the word that "no German citizens—no Reich Deutscher" can sail.

The other two who were forced to quit the Rex were Katharina Weber, a domestic sailing for Munich after 10 years in America, and Kurt Muller, a tourist class passenger who was so affected by the order that he wept and could not talk.

Miss Weber also left the boat weeping.

"I was going to see my people. I have not heard from them since the beginning of the war," she said.

HITLER BLAMES WAR IN EUROPE ON REICH FOES

ain and France, he accused England of fighting women and children by means of its sea blockade and promised the people of the Reich that Germany itself would soon have an "invincible" sea force.

"We accept the challenge, and we will fight as long as our adversaries will," the Fuehrer said. "Come what may, we will carry this battle to the end. We will never capitulate—the war lasts three, six or seven years, Germany will never again be dismembered."

Hitler talked for one hour and 16 minutes from the ancient town hall of the Hanseatic League in Danzig's long market square.

If the French and English insist upon fighting, however, the Fuehrer said:

"I can only say I am sorry for the French policy. If the war lasts three years or six or seven years, the Reich will never capitulate—the Reich will never be dismembered."

"We fight for our national existence."

"British statesmen will now be glad to learn of Germany's intentions," the Fuehrer said after justifying his invasion of Poland as necessitated by the "Barbarism" of the Polish government.

"Germany has talked matters over with Russia."

"The German objectives are very limited."

"Russia will not be fought."

"The nightmare of British statesmen and rumors of world conquest, can now be removed."

"Germany wants to achieve a lasting peace in which our interests, limited as they are, will be protected against every danger."

"Russia and Germany will now settle this situation in a way which will result in removal of tension."

"I endeavored to arrange friendly relations with Italy. In this I have succeeded. I have tried to do the same thing with France, and in England our offers are known."

"The real cause of war must be made known. First Poland was blamed, then Germany, and even I have had the honor of being named."

England's efforts to stigmatize him as the personal cause of war, Hitler said, made little or no difference to him.

"Any regime approved by the other powers would automatically be poison to the people of Germany," he said.

"Germany and Russia can best take care of their own interests. Under the great agreement that has been achieved, Russia will remain Russia and Germany will continue to be Germany."

"So far as our future aims are concerned I want to state that our program will effect a general lessening of European tension. We have thought that so far as the west was concerned, peace could be maintained."

"It is stupid for the English people to think that they could divorce the German people from me, and as a result of such stupidity millions of lives may be lost."

"England's statement that they are waging a war only against me and my regime I accept as a compliment. Any German regime which would merit the praise of Britain would be in the pay of Britain."

"If they think they can alienate the German people from me, they are without character."

"If this war is going to last three years, I can only express my regret for the French soldier. If it does last three years, the word capitulation will not be in the German language—even if it lasts for six or seven years."

"If there are going to be any people split, it will not be our people. Of one thing you may be sure—Poland as it existed after the Versailles treaty will never live again. This statement of mine is backed as well by Russia."

Parents Get Blame For Problem Child

Failure To Accept Responsibility Is Held Cause Of Trouble
By Expert

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 19.—"Children go amok because parents want a formula which will relieve them of responsibility."

This assertion came from Dr. John J. B. Morgan, director of Northwestern University's psychological clinic, which annually diagnoses the cases of hundreds of "problem children."

"Less than one per cent of these children need to be sent to homes or to court, and even many of the court cases could be more easily handled by individuals with insight," Dr. Morgan declared.

Blame On Parents

He reported results of the clinic's investigations put the blame for children's anti-social behavior on the parents.

"A large proportion of child delinquency," he said, "could be avoided if parents knew how to behave but there can be only one general rule to guide them—study the child instead of the rules. Successful parents modify their behavior according to the child's reactions."

And parents who are overly ambitious for their offspring were found to be the most common offenders, Dr. Morgan reported.

Resistance Grows

"The kind of case most commonly referred to the clinic," he asserted, "is that of a child who develops resistance because his parents are too ambitious for him."

"They (the parents) project their own attitudes. If a mother wanted to be an opera singer, she is sure she will give birth to an opera singer. If a father is an indifferently successful banker, he will want his son to be a highly successful banker."

"Pushing the child develops resistance that is hard to overcome."

The clinic seeks to uncover causes of anti-social conduct on the theory that mere suppression of symptoms has no lasting benefit. Dr. Morgan cautioned, however, that it would be "wrong to assume" that the cause can be told by the symptom.

Representative For World Press Sent To Allied Lines

(International News Service)
LONDON, Sept. 19.—Heavy pressure from American press associations and newspapers for representation at allied headquarters on the western front today led to appointment by the British government of a single English correspondent to represent the world press as a temporary measure.

Lord MacMillan, minister of information, chose A. J. Clifford, former Reuter (British news agency) correspondent in Berlin, who is expected to leave for the front today. He will represent the world press until the government permits regular American and other newspapermen to proceed to G. H. Q.

Clifford, who is 30, was educated at Charterhouse school and Oriel college, Oxford university, from which he was graduated with honors in philosophy, politics and economics. Upon leaving Oxford, he joined Reuter's agency and was assigned to cover the Spanish civil war, remaining almost until the end of the war.

Clifford managed Reuter's Berlin bureau until the outbreak of war, whereupon he went to Brussels and thence to London to join Reuter's main office.

Pass Defense Is Stressed As Gridders Drill

New Castle High "Red Hurricane" Working Hard To Get In Shape For Youngstown East

BLOCKING ALSO GIVEN ATTENTION

Monday afternoon the New Castle high "Red Hurricane" football team took up intensive training for the game this coming Friday night. The team will be in action at Taggart stadium against the fast Youngstown East high team. The kickoff is slated for 8 o'clock under the maddas.

It will be pass defense that will be stressed mostly this week, said Head Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh. The locals did not look any too good in the Butler game, being fooled several times on passes that should have been broken up. The fans will notice a big improvement in this particular department on Friday night, was the way "Bridy" put it.

Blocking Polished Up
Besides a lot of pass defense work, the "Red Hurricane" players will be given several long drills in the important art of blocking, another department that was just a little weak last Friday night. A team of good blockers is hard to beat.

"I was rather well pleased at the work of the line in the Butler game, but they still need a little polishing up, which they will get this week," Bridenbaugh stated.

Big John Kulnis played a fine game at tackle, so did little Cas-trucci for starting his first big league game. At end Ralph Cennamone played a fine game and with a little more experience is going to give New Castle a lot of end play this year. Pete Zarrilla starting his first game at right end, looked good also, and needs a few more games to get his bearings and will be a valuable man. Another boy who looked good against Butler was Attilio Piccirilli, at right guard. Gilboy at left guard played his customary fine game, and so did Ernie Adamo at center, although he did make a few bad passes, especially to Gilboy on several pun formations.

Well Fortified
The New Castle high team is well fortified this year by capable reserves, always a strong link to any great chain. "Dick" Biddle is going to be a valuable man at a tackle post before the season is very much older. Morgan gave a good account of himself last week in the Butler game at center. Jerry. Bucci and Deep also looked good. In the backfield the reserves led by McKee, Joe Izzo and Gennock, looked good. In fact Bridenbaugh has two very fine lines this year, and when he takes a player out, he can replace him with a man that measures up almost in the same category. A matter like this gladdens the hearts of all coaches.

East Working Hard
Reports from Youngstown say that Youngstown East Under Coach Dick Barrett, are working hard in the practice field this week, getting ready for the New Castle game which they would like to win very much. Last year New Castle nosed out East 8 to 7. The Ohioans are out for revenge. Look out for a great passing attack Friday night. East High uses the Notre Dame system and that means passes galore.

Billy Conn is quoted as 2 to 1 favorite over Mike Bettina from whom Conn won the light-heavyweight title. In number of knockouts Bettina has won 39 per cent of his fights with a knockout and Conn 15 per cent. A Detroit, Bob Pastor weighs 187 for his fight with champion heavyweight Joe Louis. He has sacrificed his desire to box, after 150 training rounds, believing he will regain his weight for the 20 round go.

Pastor believes, he reported, he will stop Louis in seven or eight rounds. Joe won the first 10-round bout two years ago.

John Malutic, Struthers' unattached professional, yesterday carved four strokes from the Riverside course par at Cambridge Springs to lead in the P. G. A. open tournament. He made two rounds of 67 on the par and 69 lay-out for a 134 total and six lead stroke over his nearest rivals, Rader Jewett, Butler Country club, and George Christ of Rochester, N. Y. Following the victory over Bessemer, Lawrence county champions over aggregations of all-stars from both City and County leagues, one must give them the gold platter for being the best team. ### Afield And Astream

Lawrence County Sportsmens Association By GEORGE SILLMAN

It won't be long until the leaves will be taking on their new fall colors and with that comes field trials and hunting season. The first trials that comes to yours-truly are next Saturday at the New Castle Fair Grounds and are sponsored by the Lawrence County Coon Hunters Association. The events will begin early in the day and finish by sundown. So you coon-hunters and fox-hunters bring on your dogs and let's see them work. A guaranteed fox hunt is promised. Refreshments on the grounds and every one welcome. If you were fortunate enough to listen to the mock coon chase the club put over via the ether waves, you will have a little idea of the sport it affords. So let's see every one interested at the Fair Grounds next Saturday, September 23rd.

Better mark October 7th down in your note book while you're at it the date set for the second annual Field Day of the Sportsmen's Council of Lawrence County. This is the day the whole county turns out again to the New Castle Fair Grounds to see what there is to see in the way of field trials. The Council this year has ten clubs under its wing and believe me when they all go together in making one field day—well that's sumpin'. Each club has its own event to put over and in that way they sort of specialize on one certain thing and all that they try to do, is out do the other fellow.

For instance—The Lawrence County Sportsmen's Ass'n has charge of the traps and skeet. What did they do? Build new trap houses, re-build the skeet field and are going to introduce to the Lawrence County Shooters night skeet shooting. Sure, at the same time we are modernizing our lay-out and going night conscious along with the baseball and football fans. Every one concerned will have a chance to try out this new thrill at the Council's Field Day this Saturday in October.

Some of the more active members of the association have been giving their time to the much needed repairs of the club's trap-skeet grounds for which we are grateful. The work has been under the direction of W. Henry Rodgers, chairman of the grounds. So some of you fellows who are too busy, drive out and see what your club owns in the way of modern trap-skeet fields. The ten 1,000 watt lights will be installed within the next week, and those of you who can call Henry at 85-J and give us a little lift. Thanks....

Dog trainers won't get a lot of training in if the weather stays around that 100 mark. It is hard work for the dogs and for the trainer himself. Well maybe it won't be long, and we'll have to dig out of our man Woolrich out of the mothballs....

The person who carelessly tosses away a lighted cigarette butt is just about 10 times as much a menace to forests "as a firebug". 56% of forest fires in the state of Michigan were attributed to smokers. So men let's be careful in the fields and woods this fall, and make Pennsylvania a better state to hunt in. Forest-Fires-Kill-Game.... Forest-Fires-Finish-Fishing.... so by being careful, we have all to gain....

Where's Elmer? Oh you mean Elmer Yoho? He has been in Cameron County helping the boys put on a new roof on Bear Camp located in Rich Valley. It is reported that the job took a whole week to complete. It ought to be a good roof Elmer, when they snow blow off of Peasley's Flats they really blow Elmer also inspected those new dams the fishermen put across the dam and he reports that they will be O. K. this fall when one wants to cross a run and more strikes. Better be careful Elmer, they're not too strong. He claims that deer signs are not as plentiful as they were in previous years. Maybe there's a reason....

William Young returned from Canada last night and reported having a swell time. He spent most of his time trying his skill on the muskies and lake trout. As usual the big one got away (honest) or alright then, the guide told him it was a big one, said it would go 25 pounds or better. But so it goes, and Bill brought home a few to show them that all of them did not get away. He reported that the muskies are a 36 hour week, by that we mean that they only bite every other day. The most wind and more strikes. On calm days it was almost useless to fish for them. The day the big one struck, his guide had to keep the outboard motor running to keep the boat in one place long enough to complete a cast. Well Bill you had a good time, and got back safely, and after all what more can a fellow wish for.

From all reports our definitions from the "Ye Anglers Dictionary" are going over swell, so here are a few more for your guys. A guide, is a true conservationist in disguise. His duty is to take you fishing "where they ain't" and to encourage you to come again next week, when the water is lower or higher, or clearer, or better. PLUGS are imitations of bananas, dill-pickles, spoons, bugs, birds, bees and what do you want. Nova manufactured in many alleged "life-like" shapes and primarily designed to fool the fisherman and lure a dollar bill from his pocket. However, authentic records exist of many feeble-minded fish taken on these lures.... A rod—a sports name for a fish-pole costing over $5.00 Rods are sold by weight—the lighter the rod, the heavier the price. Like knights of old who splintered their lances in tournaments, all fishermen strive to have a fish break their rod—an event of great distinction to boast about.... Enough for this time and see you again next week, I hope....

Sports World Ramblings

Local Tidbits—John Brincko, one of the city's leading sports followers, sat in on the Tony Galento-Lou Nova hammering. Asked for a comment, Brincko said: "Nova showed absolutely nothing. As for Galento, it's true what they say about that left hook. It's wicked." In defeating Ellwood City, Bessemer high's juggernaut recorded its 22th victory in a row.... John Susko's Union Township high faces Ellwood City, Saturday, at Ellwood....

Yanks-Boston: Several of the better known local baseball addicts took us to task for stating that the New York Yanks are not so hot, that their domination over the junior loop is about to end. The team to do it? I picked the Red Sox, pointing out that, minus a shaky hurling staff, the Beantowners came hitting, we stated that Boston swings a more wicked war club than the supposed to be fence busters. We were panned and asked to prove the statements....

Cold black figures show that, as a team, Boston is clipping the horsehide at a 292 clip, exclusive of games played Sunday or Monday. The Yanks are hitting .288. We defy anyone to match the hitting of Ted Williams and Jimmy Foxx. Sure, one of the lads is Joe DiMaggio. After that, you stop. As run producers, can any two Yanks match Williams and Foxx? Decidedly, no! Again I repeat, if the Yanks continue their present play, they haven't a chance to beat the Reds or Cards.

A few boxing briefs—Joe Louis must kavo Bob Pastor in less than three rounds to maintain his present batting average. In his last six scrapes, the champ required but 15 rounds to win. Incidentally, Pastor is one of seven gladiators that the Brown Bomber has failed to kavo in 43 engagements.... The Galento-Nova affair proved, that until someone better comes along, Roly-Poly is the top contender for Louis's crown. Around the ringside, you could have named your own price if you fancied Galento....

Louisville Winner Over Indianapolis

Continuing to shellack the pellet, the Louisville Colonels marched a step closer to the American Association championship by defeating Indianapolis, 5-1, Monday night.

Ancient Arabians and Persians believed the diamond had the power to bring great good fortune to its owner—but only if the stone was a gift.

The total area of Alaska is 378,165,760 acres, of which only 2,106,835 have been surveyed.

Reds Or Cards, Who Will Win?

Both Teams Fighting Hard For Pennant Split Twin Bills On Monday

PIRATES DEFEAT PHILLIES 7 TO 4

By LAWTON CARVER International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Coming events cast their shadows before them.

Many astute, conservative observers contend that the current New York Yankees make up the greatest baseball team in the history of the game, and on that basis alone they should be favored to break their own all-time record of three straight world series triumphs when they tangle up three weeks hence with the ultimate survivor of the National League scramble. However, there is more to it than that in the early establishment of the Yanks as favorites. Briefly, they went out and won their pennant, beating back the field down through the stretch. The Cincinnati Reds are backing into their championship, in contrast, and if they blow it and the St. Louis Cardinals come through with a miracle, the latter would have much to crow about either.

Chances Muffed
For the second straight day the Reds and Cardinals muffed chances to do something about the tight race by splitting doubleheaders yesterday, with the result that the Reds remained 3½ games in front, which means that the Reds are just that much nearer the pennant. They have 15 games left and the Cards 13. About seven or eight victories—perhaps even less—will sew it up for the Reds.

However, they are doing it the extremely hard way. After making nine errors in Sunday's split twin bill they came back yesterday with three more, winning the first game from the Boston Bees, 4 to 1, and dropping the nightcap, 5 to 4.

Pirates Trim Phils
In the only other National League game, the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 4.

The Yanks increased their lead to 16½ games over the idle Boston Red Sox and scored their 99th victory, beating the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 2. In the other contests in that circuit, Cleveland defeated Philadelphia, 9 to 4, and Washington won from Detroit, 4 to 2.

MALUTIC LEADS AT CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS

John Malutic, of Struthers, O., well known to local golfers, led the field on the opening day of the annual P. G. A. tournament at Cambridge Springs, having two rounds of 67, two under par, to get a six stroke lead on his nearest opponent, Rader Jewett, of Butler.

Death Ray For Influenza Germs May Help Win War

Medical Scientist Predicts Successful Battle Against Disease

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A death ray that may help win the war—a death ray for influenza germs—was hailed here at a recent scientific convention.

Recalling that influenza epidemics among soldiers killed untold thousands in 1918, Dr. Stuart Mudd of the University of Pennsylvania, said, "We should profit by this experience and make use of the knowledge we have gained since then to prevent a recurrence."

Such knowledge may be a major factor in the winning of a war, he said.

The death ray for influenza germs is ultra violet rays. When directed across the entrance to a room, ultra violet rays not only prevent entry of the germs but kill them off.

Sterilization Of Air
Sterilization of the air by this means in barracks, ships, hospitals and other public gathering places was suggested as the best way to check the disease.

City people build up resistance to influenza because they frequent places where the germs are prevalent. Individuals from the country, unused to crowded places and the accompanying attack on their system by more plentiful germs, tend to contract the "air-borne" diseases—influenza, pneumonia and the like.

Scientists estimated that 20,000,000 died and another 50,000,000 were ill as the result of influenza epidemics in the last war.

They put forth the belief that as the influenza viruses were transferred from one person to another they became more deadly—more virulent—as medical terminology puts it.
